

LABOR MEETING
IN BALTIMORE
NEXT WEEKG. F. of L. Will Hold Most Important Convention in Its History

WAGE INCREASE IS WANTED

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 10—All branches of organized labor in this country are vitally interested in the thirty-sixth annual convention of the American Federation, which is to open Monday morning in this city. Members of the executive council who are already here say the convention will be the largest the organization has ever held. It undoubtedly will prove to be also the most important ever held in the history of organized labor in America.

Many astute observers are of the opinion that a crisis is at hand in the history of labor organizations in this country. During the past two years largely as a result of the war in Europe, the American industrial world has undergone economic changes the importance of which cannot be overestimated. These changes have had a vital bearing on the condition of labor and on the relations between employer and employee. The unprecedented prosperity in practically every line of industry has brought about a higher wage standard than the country has known before. At the same time it has enabled employers to grant the demands of their employees for a short workday and conditions of labor which they had not felt themselves in a position to comply with in normal times. The change has been made in some quarters that organized labor has taken advantage of the situation and gone too far in its demands and that the workingmen will be the heaviest sufferers when the inevitable reaction sets in.

On the other hand, the labor organizations contend that the wage increases and improved conditions brought about during the past year or two were due to the workers irrespective of the condition of the times. That they do not intend to recede in their demands and that they have no doubt as to the ability of the unions to hold the gains already won, irrespective of any industrial conditions that may arise in the future, is expected to be made plain and emphatic in the declarations and addresses at the coming convention.

On these questions it is expected that all factions participating in the convention will be practically united. There is another question, however, on which a serious difference of opinion is believed to exist and the introduction of which on the convention floor may have far-reaching effects on the future of the great labor organization. This is the question of politics, or rather the stand taken by those in control of the organization in the recent national campaign.

Throughout its long and highly successful career the American Federation of Labor has kept aloof from active participation in politics. In the recent campaign it took no official stand as an organization, but in the interviews, editorials and in speeches on the stump the prominent officials ardently supported the Democratic cause. In adopting this attitude they probably were sincere in the belief that they reflected the views of the vast army of workingmen that make up the organization.

But among the rank and file of the membership of the Federation there is believed to be a considerable element opposed to the stand taken by their leaders. Many of these members have always opposed any active participation in politics by the Federation for the simple reason that politics is one of the evils that has disrupted trades unionism in the past. Of a still more formidable character is the opposition of the strong Socialist element of the organization. This element has ever been opposed to Samuel Gompers, largely because of his conservatism. In taking sides in a recent campaign, Mr. Gompers is argued, has furnished his opponents with new ammunition with which to renew their fight to oust him from power.

The supporters of President Gompers affect to have no fear as to the outcome. One and all they declare that the opposition will prove a flash in the pan it has in the past. Others are not so optimistic, however, and these predict that the men who have so long guided the affairs of the organization will have to overcome a fierce and desperate fight if they retain control.

The existing situation with regards to the affairs of the Federation is compared by some of the veteran members to that which prevailed some 20 years ago, at the time of the Populist craze. It is recalled how a handful of designing ringsters in each of the larger bodies of trades unions tried to pledge their respective organizations to the Populist party. From the moment the scheme was broached there was a division and the lines between the two factions were sharply drawn. The most bitter feeling was aroused everywhere. The movement started in Chicago, and soon spread in a greater or less degree to every part of the country where labor organization had gained a foothold. On the side of the radicals the most dangerous element in the country was gathered for a time. Anarchists of the most rabid type gained access to the meetings of workmen, and worked a limited amount of injury to the organizations. For a time they were allowed a loose rein, and then unceremoniously "fired out" of the labor organizations. The so-called conservative element under the leadership of Mr. Gompers gained the upper hand and has since remained in control.

Democrats Win With Wilson
Now Has 273 Electoral Votes
Recount Likely in Few States

California, New Mexico and North Dakota Finally Turn to President and Make His Victory Certain.

FINAL COUNT MAY REACH HIGHER TOTAL

New York, Nov. 10—(By United Press)—The re-election of Woodrow Wilson and Thomas Marshall was generally conceded today on the face of returns from California and New Mexico. Hughes election hangs on a thread depending on a split in California and New Mexico and by taking the entire electoral vote in West Virginia, New Hampshire and Minnesota. Republican headquarters still hold off. They will not concede on the face of returns from California and New Mexico and even as the situation becomes more hopeless they still hold on. Privately it is not publicly every one at the Republican headquarters early today conceded Wilson's reelection, but Chairman Wilcox will not concede California to Wilson.

Republican newspapers concede that Hughes has lost and are now turning to congress. That body according to best available returns today will be a senate with a Democratic majority of 12 and the lower house Republican by the barest margin. In that it seems certain that it will be close with 210 Republicans and 214 Democrats with the balance of power in the hands of five or six representatives of minor parties.

Hughes has 241 certain in the electoral college today and would need the entire 19 from Minnesota and New Hampshire and New Mexico and four in California. West Virginia returns show that Wilson will receive one electoral vote in that state. California returns show 33 precincts missing and a plurality of 400. Returns from the missing 33 precincts cannot be ascertained. The Wilson lead. Official count not expected until vision may split the electoral vote.

By J. H. Faray

San Francisco, Nov. 10—(By United Press)—The Chicago Tribune Republican at 10:00 a. m. declared that Wilson had been re-elected with 260 votes. California was conceded to Wilson by the Tribune.

three precincts are missing. Complete returns from 5834 precincts in California at 9:20 today gave a lead of 3982 for Wilson. The reduction was made by Clerk Kay of Humboldt county who stated that the President was erroneously credited with 1,000 more votes than was due him. This leaves 28 precincts to be heard from.

New York, Nov. 10—(By United Press)—The stock exchange opened this morning with regular and narrow changes in price in the face of apparent assurance of Wilson's reelection today. Steel showed an advance and railroad stock was a fraction down.

Opening in United States Steel was $124 and $124 1/2. The former being yesterday's closing figure. Before noon U. S. Steel went to $125 with heavy trading.

Concord, N. H., Nov. 10—(By United Press)—Late but incomplete figures show President Wilson a plurality of 239 votes. Eleven towns are still missing.

New York, Nov. 10—(By United Press)—New York police were asked to be on the lookout for three young men who entered the office of the Prudential Life Insurance Company at Union Hill, New Jersey today and held up the cashier at the point of a pistol and escaped with $15,000. They escaped in an automobile.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 10—(By United Press)—J. W. Connolly, Democratic for governor, was leading Judge Robinson Republican by 1000 votes in complete returns. From all but 10 districts in West Virginia and 10 in Ohio was leading with 1000 votes. Official tabulation of the presidential returns was completed, but the party tally was not yet made. The party tally was not yet made.

JAIL BREAKER IS
CAUGHT IN ACT
BY SHERIFFGeorge Stewart, of DuBois, Is Caught In The Act of Attempting to Break Jail

IN JAIL ON SERIOUS CHARGE

George Stewart, the DuBois man, who is in jail charged with incest, is now up against another charge which will ensure him a trip to Pittsburgh regardless of what may be the outcome of the first charge against him.

Stewart was arrested some two weeks ago on information made by Juvenile Probation officer Leavy, alleging a crime against his weak-minded daughter aged 17. Ever since being placed in jail he has been very much ill at ease and was constantly going about the jail and in and out of the different cells apparently making a careful examination of the walls and interior generally. His apparent interest in the construction of the building got to the attention of Sheriff McCloskey, who kept a close watch on his movements.

Stewart's investigation disclosed the weak place he was evidently hunting and taking advantage of Sheriff McCloskey's absence from the jail at Democratic headquarters during election day and night Stewart went to work Tuesday to dig his way to liberty. He broke up the cot in his cell and secured a piece of iron about twenty inches long from the frame work and with this succeeded in digging a hole in the wall. He evidently worked all night Tuesday night, secreting the refuse dug from the wall under the mattress in his cell.

By daylight Wednesday morning Stewart had dug the inside wall out and had the mortar all removed from around a stone in the outside wall sufficient in size to allow him to squeeze through and only awaited the darkness of the evening to force the stone out and make his get away.

Wednesday morning the sheriff made a tour of the jail and detected slight traces of sand and dirt on the floor near the rear wall. A careful examination of the wall disclosed the loosened stone. The prisoners were then all locked in their cells and Sheriff McCloskey began a careful search and examination of each occupant and his surroundings in an effort to locate the attempted jail breaker. Stewart's cell was soon reached and the tell tale broken cot and pile of stones and mortar located. He was confronted with the evidence and at once made a clean breast of the affair, stating that if the sheriff had given him just a few hours more he soon would have been out and away.

Stewart was taken before Squire Milligan where Sheriff McCloskey preferred charges of attempted jail breaking against him. He entered a plea of guilty and was again returned to jail and will be called to answer for his crimes at December term of court.

SOCIALIZING THE COUNTRY SCHOOL AND MAKING IT AN INSTITUTION OF COMMUNITY SERVICE.

Much has been said and written concerning the apathetic relations of the average country school to its community. These conditions are too familiar to need lengthy comment. It is rather our purpose to point out how community interest can be aroused. Every community is deeply interested in the welfare of its school and children. The children are the best assets of any community.

The dominant and latent social forces need only be aroused by a wide awake progressive teacher, these forces are in every community and can be crystallized into active co-operation to make the school more efficient. The more closely the work of the school is correlated with the dominant interests of the parents the more certain and vital will be the co-operation.

The common school entertainment furnishes the best beginning for socializing the country school, but two important principles should guard its use. In the first place, the school entertainment should elevate and idealize, never compromise or cheapen in its influence. Second, the entertainment as a whole should grow out of the daily school work and permanent interests of the community.

The County Superintendent and the Farm Agent of Clearfield County are making an effort to unite all the forces of the County to promote the welfare of the schools and harmonize its activities with the modern trend of education. Teachers are planning to hold a "Community Day" on November 29th.

A suggestive plan has been submitted to aid the teachers in their efforts. Much interest has already been manifested in the "School and Agricultural Display" which the schools are planning for Institute Week.

A display of farm products as well as good school work will add interest to the program which the teachers are contemplating. Corn, apples, potatoes, and various kinds of grain and vegetables will be placed on exhibit as well as good work in drawing, writing, hand work and needle work.

Local judges will award prizes in the form of ribbons to the best specimens on display. A neatly arranged program will be rendered by the children. Each pupil should be encouraged to send a note of invitation to his or her parents to attend the exercises.

These displays will be collected and put on exhibit in Clearfield during Institute Week.

The Agricultural Society and the Granges of the County as well as many private individuals are actively engaged to make this display of Agricultural products and school work a success. All are enthusiastic about the movement. From the interest already manifested there is no doubt as to the success of the project.

HUNTING NEWS AND GOSSIP

EDITED BY J. D. CONNELLY

GIVE US SOME GAME

Clearfield county hunters will make a determined effort to secure pheasants, squirrels, wild turkeys and deer for propagating purposes next year, and Dr. Kalbfus and the State Game commission will be importuned by a committee representing the Clearfield County Hunters' association to invest in game birds and animals a fair and reasonable share of the hunters' license money turned into the state treasury from this county. Our hunters feel that the money paid out by the devotees of dog and gun in Clearfield county should be returned in part at least in the way of game propagation. Five to six thousand dollars are raised each year in this county and during the time the hunters' license law has been in effect sixteen or seventeen thousand dollars have been piled up to our credit. Of this amount, which the law says must be used "for the propagation and protection of game," we feel safe in saying, there has not been one thousand dollars returned to our county in the way of supplying game for propagating purposes.

This should and must not be so. The Game commission, after this year's license money is received will have a fund of three or four hundred thousand dollars on hands, and if they are not going to get busy and do something and use this money in the direction it was intended and contemplated in the law, then the hunter's license law has gone for enough and should be repealed or suspended at least until the Game commission gets move enough on to get out in the market and secure the game birds and animals native to our woods and thickets and place them where they will have an opportunity of propagating and replenishing the game supply of the county.

This should not be hard to do. It does not seem to be much of a proposition for the individual to secure both game birds and game animals when they desire to propagate the same for private uses as the different private game reserves will show, and the Game Commission, which has so much more opportunity and unlimited cash to secure for the hunters of the state what is needed along this line, should by all means organize their forces, get busy and do what is rightfully expected of them, or suspend the operation of the hunters' license law until such time as additional funds are needed. A surplus of many thousands of dollars in the hands of the Game commission is neither necessary nor desirable. What is needed now is action that will result in the needed supply of game birds and animals for Clearfield and every other suitable county next year.

A Hunter Legislator

G. W. Bell one of the newly elected members of the legislature from Clearfield county, is an enthusiastic hunter and woodsman, and will be in position to see that Clearfield county gets some action on their hunter's license money for next year.

The Pheasants Got Away

Some Clearfield hunters are returning thanks to A. E. Leitzinger for his kindness, unintentional though it was, in supplying a fine covey of ringneck pheasants for the patch of woods adjoining the borough known as Polk's Bottom. Mr. Leitzinger secured two settings of pheasants eggs last spring from which he succeeded in raising twenty pheasants. About two weeks before the season opened the pesky birds got out of their cage and beat it into the woods back of Mr. Leitzinger's country place and have since furnished fine sport for several hunters lucky enough to run into them while sneaking a few minutes recreation with dog and gun within sight of town.

The Bird Dog Should Go

If the bird dog was kept out of the woods for about three years, it would do much toward increasing the supply of game birds in this county. It solved the problem on the deer question and will also do it with the bird.

Was Some Rifle Shot

Hubert Leisy, one of the pioneer

hunters of Clearfield county, who has killed more than five hundred deer, one hundred and seventeen bears, fifteen panthers and several scores of wild cats, was a Clearfield visitor this week. Hubert's hunting grounds was the wilderness surrounding the Big Knob and Chestnut ridge in Girard and Covington townships and on the headwaters of Mosquito Creek. He did his first hunting with an old flint lock and was noted as one of the greatest rifle shots in this section. In talking of his ability along this line with a number of hunters in County Treasure Kline's office yesterday the old Frenchman said: "When I was a young man the eye of the humming bird at one hundred yards was fine mark for me."

Deer Very Plenty at the Knobs

Pete Brown of the Knobs, was in Clearfield Monday and reported that deer were never more plenty in that section and said he had seen as many as ten in a herd in one of his back fields on the head of Deer creek, while a field of fall grain just coming up was literally destroyed by the deer making a pasturage out of it.

Wounded Bear Got Away

One of the real tragedies of the woods was enacted in the vicinity of Crooked run camp last week. Weaver Amon, of Goshen township, was hunting pheasants along the run below the camp and ran right into an old bear and two cubs. One of the cubs, startled by the appearance of the hunter, stopped some forty yards distant looking right at him. Amon promptly sent a load of No. 6 shot into his face and when he tumbled over let fly with the other barrel. The bear thrashed through the underbrush and started up over the mountain toward Trout run. The hunter started after his game, having no difficulty in following the trail of blood left by the wounded bear, who rushed blindly through the brush. When he reached the top of the ridge he stopped and bled profusely, crushing and breaking off saplings the size of a man's arm in his paroxysms of pain and rage at his hurts. Seeing the animal was badly hurt, Amon made every effort to get close enough to it to get in a finishing shot but failed to do so, being forced by approaching darkness to relinquish the chase as the bear slowly worked his way up the mountainside onto Green ridge, where he no doubt expired in agony from his wounds.

We Could Use Some Here

Lock Haven sportsmen are arranging to plant a large shipment of sunfish and catfish in Bald Eagle creek handy that city. The fish were secured from the hatchery at Torresdale, Pa. Clearfield sportsmen should get busy along the same line and stock with these fish little Clearfield creek and the lower ends of Lick and Trout runs.

Last Deer Killed in Clearfield

The last deer to be killed within the limits of Clearfield borough, fell to the unerring aim of the late Captain J. E. Harder, who secured his prize on flat above the B, R. & P. station, some six or eight years ago.

Three Thousand Deer Hunters

It is safe to say that there will be no less than three thousand hunters in the woods of Clearfield county during the deer season of 1916—the first two weeks in December.

A flock of about thirty wild turkeys is located in the woods on the farm of John McCloskey at Pottersdale, this county. Sheriff McCloskey was down there hunting pheasants the other day and had to sit still and refrain from shooting while the entire flock strutted by within thirty yards of where he was located at the edge of a buckwheat field. It was hard work obeying the law, and he had to advise Satan to get behind him a couple of times while the parade was passing.

The picture show entertainment given in the M. E. church last evening, drew a number of children and grown persons to the edifice. Owing to the rain showers the crowd was not near so large as it would have been had the weather been more favorable, but those who were there can away will be pleased with the hour's entertainment.

The many Curwensville friends of Messrs. Brumbaugh and Matthews, who were instantly killed near Blue Ball yesterday forenoon by being thrown under a passenger train from an automobile, were terribly shocked when the news of the accident was flashed to them. Both men were traveling salesmen and had been coming to Curwensville regularly for a number of years, and had made many warm friends among the merchants and people.

Messrs. Bowers Brothers have done the right thing by then miners and teamsters by giving them a substantial raise in wages, the same to take effect on next Monday. These two men operate two or three mines over on the South side of town, and some of the men in their employ have been with them for many months, which is a good indication that they like the men to have as much as their business can afford to pay, barring a small profit for themselves.

A good many people of Curwensville have yet a fair recollection of the men who composed the old Maple Leaf baseball club of 1882 and 1883, and the brilliant games played by them while the Mountain League was in force. Between Clearfield and this team the feeling of conquest ran high and each game was fought to a finish.

LABOR MEETING
IN BALTIMORE
NEXT WEEKG. F. of L. Will Hold Most Important Convention in Its History

WAGE INCREASE IS WANTED

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 10.—All branches of organized labor in this country are vitally interested in the thirty-sixth annual convention of the American Federation, which is to open Monday morning in this city. Members of the executive council who are already here say the convention will be the largest the organization has ever held. It undoubtedly will prove to be also the most important ever held in the history of organized labor in America.

Many astute observers are of the opinion that a crisis is at hand in the history of labor organizations in this country. During the past two years largely as a result of the war in Europe, the American industrial world has undergone economic changes the importance of which cannot be overestimated. These changes have had a vital bearing on the condition of labor and on the relations between employer and employee. The unprecedented prosperity in practically every line of industry has brought about a higher wage standard than the country has known before. At the same time it has enabled employers to grant the demands of their employees for a short workday and conditions of labor which they had not felt themselves in a position to comply with in normal times. The change has been made in some quarters that organized labor has taken advantage of the situation and gone too far in its demands and that the workingmen will be the heaviest sufferers when the inevitable reaction sets in.

On the other hand, the labor organizations contend that the wage increases and improved conditions brought about during the past year or two were due to the workers irrespective of the condition of the times. That they do not intend to recede in their demands and that they have no doubt as to the ability of the unions to hold the gains already won, irrespective of any industrial conditions that may arise in the future, is expected to be made plain and emphatic in the declarations and addresses at the coming convention.

On these questions it is expected that all factions participating in the convention will be practically united. There is another question, however, on which a serious difference of opinion is believed to exist and the introduction of which on the convention floor may have far-reaching effects on the future of the great labor organization. This is the question of politics, or rather the stand taken by those in control of the organization in the recent national campaign.

Throughout its long and highly successful career the American Federation of Labor has kept aloof from active participation in politics. In the recent campaign it took no official stand as an organization, but in the interviews, editorials and in speeches on the stump the prominent officials ardently supported the Democratic cause. In adopting this attitude they probably were sincere in the belief that they reflected the views of the vast army of workingmen that make up the organization.

But among the rank and file of the membership of the Federation there is believed to be a considerable element opposed to the stand taken by their leaders. Many of these members have always opposed any active participation in politics by the Federation for the simple reason that politics is one of the evils that has disrupted trades unionism in the past. Of a still more formidable character is the opposition of the strong Socialist element of the organization. This element has ever been opposed to Samuel Gompers, largely because of his conservatism. In taking sides in a recent campaign, Mr. Gompers is argued, has furnished his opponents with new ammunition with which to renew their fight to oust him from power.

The supporters of President Gompers affect to have no fear as to the outcome. One and all they declare that the opposition will prove a flash in the pan it has in the past. Others are not so optimistic, however, and these predict that the men who have so long guided the affairs of the organization will have to overcome a fierce and desperate fight if they retain control.

The existing situation with regards to the affairs of the Federation is compared by some of the veteran members to that which prevailed some 20 years ago, at the time of the Populist craze. It is recalled how a handful of designing ringsters in each of the larger bodies of trades unions tried to pledge their respective organizations to the Populist party. From the moment the scheme was broached there was a division and the lines between the two factions were sharply drawn. The most bitter feeling was aroused everywhere. The movement started in Chicago, and soon spread in a greater or less degree to every part of the country where labor organization had gained a foothold. On the side of the radicals the most dangerous element in the country was gathered for a time. Anarchists of the most rabid type gained access to the meetings of workmen, and worked a limited amount of injury to the organizations. For a time they were allowed a loose rein, and then unceremoniously "fired out" of the labor organizations. The so-called conservative element under the leadership of Mr. Gompers gained the upper hand and has since remained in control.

Democrats Win With Wilson
Now Has 273 Electoral Votes
Recount Likely in Few States

California, New Mexico and North Dakota Finally Turn to President and Make His Victory Certain.

FINAL COUNT MAY REACH HIGHER TOTAL

New York, Nov. 10.—(By United Press)—The re-election of Woodrow Wilson and Thomas Marshall was generally conceded today on the face of returns from California and New Mexico. Hughes election hangs on a thread depending on a split in California and New Mexico and by taking the entire electoral vote in West Virginia, New Hampshire and Minnesota. Republican headquarters still hold off. They will not concede on the face of returns from California and New Mexico and even as the situation becomes more hopeless they still hold on. Privately it is not publicly every one at the Republican headquarters early today conceded Wilson's reelection, but Chairman Wilcox will not concede California to Wilson.

Republican newspapers concede that Hughes has lost and are now turning to congress. That body according to best available returns today will be a senate with a Democratic majority of 12 and the lower house Republican by the barest margin. In that it seems certain that it will be close with 210 Republicans and 214 Democrats with the balance of power in the hands of five or six representatives of minor parties.

Hughes has 241 certain in the electoral college today and would need the entire 19 from Minnesota and New Hampshire and New Mexico and four in California. West Virginia returns show that Wilson will receive one electoral vote in that state. California returns show 33 precincts missing and a plurality of votes. Returns from the Wilson lead. Official count not expected until vision may split the electoral vote.

New Mexico with 15 precincts of 398 missing and Wilson 321 and Hughes 307, a lead of 17. It was stated that the return of the missing precincts may split the vote three precincts are missing. Complete returns from 5834 precincts in California at 9:20 today gave a lead of 3982 for Wilson. The reduction was made by Clerk Kay of Humboldt county who stated that the President was erroneously credited with 1,000 more votes than was due him. This leaves 28 precincts to be heard from.

New York, Nov. 10.—(By United Press)—The stock exchange opened this morning with regular and narrow changes in price in the face of apparent assurance of Wilson's reelection today. Steel showed an advance and railroad stock was a fraction down.

Opening in United States Steel was $124 and $124 1/2. The former being yesterday's closing figure. Before noon U. S. Steel went to $125 with heavy trading.

Concord, N. H., Nov. 10.—By United Press—Late but incomplete figures show President Wilson a plurality of 239 votes. Eleven towns are still missing.

New York, Nov. 10.—By United Press—New York police were asked to be on the lookout for three young men who entered the office of the Prudential Life Insurance Company at Union Hill, New Jersey today and held up the cashier at the point of a pistol and escaped with $15,000. They escaped in an automobile.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 10.—By United Press—J. W. Connolly, Democratic candidate for governor, was leading Judge Robinson Republican by 1000 votes in complete returns from all but 10 districts in West Virginia and Hughes was leading with 1000 votes. Official tabulation of the presidential returns was completed but the party tally was not yet made. But 500 precincts show Wilson leading by 527. Complete figures as tabulated by the United Press show Wilson 467,000 and Hughes 462,100. Returns are in from all but 10 counties out of the 53 and in ten of these not more than

(United Press Staff Correspondent) San Francisco, Nov. 10.—California has swung into the Woodrow Wilson column according to returns from 33 precincts out of 53. Returns from the Wilson lead. There may be a split in the electoral vote after the expected returns have been made. But 500 precincts show Wilson leading by 527. JAIL BREAKER IS
BY SHERIFFGeorge Stewart, of DuBois, Is Caught In The Act of Attempting to Break Jail

IN JAIL ON SERIOUS CHARGE

George Stewart, the DuBois man, who is in jail charged with incest, is now up against another charge which will ensure him a trip to Pittsburgh regardless of what may be the outcome of the first charge against him.

Stewart was arrested some two weeks ago on information made by Juvenile Probation officer Leavy, alleging a crime against his weak-minded daughter aged 17. Ever since being placed in jail he has been very much ill at ease and was constantly going about the jail and in and out of the different cells apparently making a careful examination of the walls and interior generally. His apparent interest in the construction of the building got to the attention of Sheriff McCloskey, who kept a close watch on his movements.

Stewart's investigation disclosed the weak place he was evidently hunting and taking advantage of Sheriff McCloskey's absence from the jail at Democratic headquarters during election day and night Stewart went to work Tuesday to dig his way to liberty. He broke up the cot in his cell and secured a piece of iron about twenty inches long from the frame work and with this succeeded in digging a hole in the wall. He evidently worked all night Tuesday night, secreting the refuse dug from the wall under the mattress in his cell.

By daylight Wednesday morning Stewart had dug the inside wall out and had the mortar all removed from around a stone in the outside wall sufficient in size to allow him to squeeze through and only awaited the darkness of the evening to force the stone out and make his get away.

Wednesday morning the sheriff made a tour of the jail and detected slight traces of sand and dirt on the floor near the rear wall. A careful examination of the wall disclosed the loosened stone. The prisoners were then all locked in their cells and Sheriff McCloskey began a careful search and examination of each occupant and his surroundings in an effort to locate the attempted jail breaker. Stewart's cell was soon reached and the tell tale broken cot and pile of stones and mortar located. He was confronted with the evidence and at once made a clean breast of the affair, stating that if the sheriff had given him just a few hours more he soon would have been out and away.

Stewart was taken before Squire Milligan where Sheriff McCloskey preferred charges of attempted jail breaking against him. He entered a plea of guilty and was again returned to jail and will be called to answer for his crimes at December term of court.

SOCIALIZING THE COUNTRY SCHOOL AND MAKING IT AN INSTITUTION OF COMMUNITY SERVICE.

Much has been said and written concerning the apathetic relations of the average country school to its community. These conditions are too familiar to need lengthy comment. It is rather our purpose to point out how community interest can be aroused. Every community is deeply interested in the welfare of its school and children. The children are the best assets of any community.

The dominant and latent social forces need only be aroused by a wide awake progressive teacher, these forces are in every community and can be crystallized into active co-operation to make the school more efficient. The more closely the work of the school is correlated with the dominant interests of the parents the more certain and vital will be the co-operation.

The common school entertainment furnishes the best beginning for socializing the country school, but two important principles should guard its use. In the first place, the school entertainment should elevate and idealize, never compromise or cheapen in its influence. Second, the entertainment as a whole should grow out of the daily school work and permanent interests of the community.

The County Superintendent and the Farm Agent of Clearfield County are making an effort to unite all the forces of the County to promote the welfare of the schools and harmonize its activities with the modern trend of education. Teachers are planning to hold a "Community Day" on November 29th.

A suggestive plan has been submitted to aid the teachers in their efforts. Much interest has already been manifested in the "School and Agricultural Display" which the schools are planning for Institute Week.

A display of farm products as well as good school work will add interest to the program which the teachers are contemplating. Corn, apples, potatoes, and various kinds of grain and vegetables will be placed on exhibit as well as good work in drawing, writing, hand work and needle work.

Local judges will award prizes in the form of ribbons to the best specimens on display. A neatly arranged program will be rendered by the children. Each pupil should be encouraged to send a note of invitation to his or her parents to attend the exercises.

These displays will be collected and put on exhibit in Clearfield during Institute Week.

The Agricultural Society and the Granges of the County as well as many private individuals are actively engaged to make this display of Agricultural products and school work a success. All are enthusiastic about the movement. From the interest already manifested there is no doubt as to the success of the project.

It will be remembered that Dr. Whalen lectured in Clearfield under the same auspices last year taking for his subject "The Wit and Humor of the Irish People" and it goes without saying that time will be glad to know that he has been secured to lecture in Clearfield again. HUNTING NEWS AND GOSSIP

GIVE US SOME GAME

Clearfield county hunters will make a determined effort to secure pheasants, squirrels, wild turkeys and deer for propagating purposes next year, and Dr. Kalbfus and the State Game commission will be importuned by a committee representing the Clearfield County Hunters' association to invest in game birds and animals a fair and reasonable share of the hunters' license money turned into the state treasury from this county. Our hunters feel that the money paid out by the devotees of dog and gun in Clearfield county should be returned in part at least in the way of game propagation. Five to six thousand dollars are raised each year in this county and during the time the hunters' license law has been in effect sixteen or seventeen thousand dollars have been piled up to our credit. Of this amount, which the law says must be used "for the propagation and protection of game," we feel safe in saying, there has not been one thousand dollars returned to our county in the way of supplying game for propagating purposes.

This should and must not be so. The Game commission, after this year's license money is received will have a fund of three or four hundred thousand dollars on hands, and if they are not going to get busy and do something and use this money in the direction it was intended and contemplated in the law, then the hunter's license law has gone for enough and should be repealed or suspended at least until the Game commission gets move enough on to get out in the market and secure the game birds and animals native to our woods and thickets and place them where they will have an opportunity of propagating and replenishing the game supply of the county.

This should not be hard to do. It does not seem to be much of a proposition for the individual to secure both game birds and game animals when they desire to propagate the same for private uses as the different private game reserves will show, and the Game Commission, which has so much more opportunity and unlimited cash to secure for the hunters of the state what is needed along this line, should by all means organize their forces, get busy and do what is rightfully expected of them, or suspend the operation of the hunters' license law until such time as additional funds are needed. A surplus of many thousands of dollars in the hands of the Game commission is neither necessary nor desirable. What is needed now is action that will result in the needed supply of game birds and animals for Clearfield and every other suitable county next year.

A Hunter Legislator

G. W. Bell one of the newly elected members of the legislature from Clearfield county, is an enthusiastic hunter and woodsman, and will be in position to see that Clearfield county gets some action on their hunter's license money for next year.

The Pheasants Got Away

Some Clearfield hunters are returning thanks to A. E. Leitzinger for his kindness, unintentional though it was, in supplying a fine covey of ringneck pheasants for the patch of woods adjoining the borough known as Polk's Bottom. Mr. Leitzinger secured two settings of pheasants eggs last spring from which he succeeded in raising twenty pheasants. About two weeks before the season opened the pesky birds got out of their cage and beat it into the woods back of Mr. Leitzinger's country place and have since furnished fine sport for several hunters lucky enough to run into them while sneaking a few minutes recreation with dog and gun within sight of town.

The Bird Dog Should Go

If the bird dog was kept out of the woods for about three years, it would do much toward increasing the supply of game birds in this county. It solved the problem on the deer question and will also do it with the bird.

Was Some Rifle Shot

Hubert Leisy, one of the pioneer

hunters of Clearfield county, who has killed more than five hundred deer, one hundred and seventeen bears, fifteen panthers and several scores of wild cats, was a Clearfield visitor this week. Hubert's hunting grounds was the wilderness surrounding the Big Knob and Chestnut ridge in Girard and Covington townships and on the headwaters of Mosquito Creek. He did his first hunting with an old flint lock and was noted as one of the greatest rifle shots in this section. In talking of his ability along this line with a number of hunters in County Treasure Kline's office yesterday the old Frenchman said: "When I was a young man the eye of the humming bird at one hundred yards was fine mark for me."

Deer Very Plenty at the Knobs

Pete Brown of the Knobs, was in Clearfield Monday and reported that deer were never more plenty in that section and said he had seen as many as ten in a herd in one of his back fields on the head of Deer creek, while a field of fall grain just coming up was literally destroyed by the deer making a pasturage out of it.

Wounded Bear Got Away

One of the real tragedies of the woods was enacted in the vicinity of Crooked run camp last week. Weaver Amon, of Goshen township, was hunting pheasants along the run below the camp and ran right into an old bear and two cubs. One of the cubs, startled by the appearance of the hunter, stopped some forty yards distant looking right at him. Amon promptly sent a load of No. 6 shot into his face and when he tumbled over let fly with the other barrel. The bear thrashed through the underbrush and started up over the mountain toward Trout run. The hunter started after his game, having no difficulty in following the trail of blood left by the wounded bear, who rushed blindly through the brush. When he reached the top of the ridge he stopped and bled profusely, crushing and breaking off saplings the size of a man's arm in his paroxysms of pain and rage at his hurts. Seeing the animal was badly hurt, Amon made every effort to get close enough to it to get in a finishing shot but failed to do so, being forced by approaching darkness to relinquish the chase as the bear slowly worked his way up the mountainside onto Green ridge, where he no doubt expired in agony from his wounds.

We Could Use Some Here

Lock Haven sportsmen are arranging to plant a large shipment of sunfish and catfish in Bald Eagle creek handy that city. The fish were secured from the hatchery at Torresdale, Pa. Clearfield sportsmen should get busy along the same line and stock with these fish little Clearfield creek and the lower ends of Lick and Trout runs.

Last Deer Killed in Clearfield

The last deer to be killed within the limits of Clearfield borough, fell to the unerring aim of the late Captain J. E. Harder, who secured his prize on flat above the B, R. & P. station, some six or eight years ago.

Three Thousand Deer Hunters

It is safe to say that there will be no less than three thousand hunters in the woods of Clearfield county during the deer season of 1916—the first two weeks in December.

A flock of about thirty wild turkeys is located in the woods on the farm of John McCloskey at Pottersdale, this county. Sheriff McCloskey was down there hunting pheasants the other day and had to sit still and refrain from shooting while the entire flock strutted by within thirty yards of where he was located at the edge of a buckwheat field. It was hard work obeying the law, and he had to advise Satan to get behind him a couple of times while the parade was passing.

Rev. Max Lantz nod holds the championship of bagging and bringing home on Wednesday the largest and heaviest pheasant that has been killed in this neck of the woods this season. The bird was almost as large as a Plymouth Rock hen of the average size.

The picture show entertainment given in the M. E. church last evening, drew a number of children and grown persons to the edifice. Owing to the rain showers the crowd was not near so large as it would have been had the weather been more favorable, but those who were there can away will be pleased with the hour's entertainment.

The many Curwensville friends of Messrs. Brumbaugh and Matthews, who were instantly killed near Blue Ball yesterday forenoon by being thrown under a passenger train from an automobile, were terribly shocked when the news of the accident was flashed to them. Both men were traveling salesmen and had been coming to Curwensville regularly for a number of years, and had made many warm friends among the merchants and people.

Messrs. Bowers Brothers have done the right thing by then miners and teamsters by giving them a substantial raise in wages, the same to take effect on next Monday. These two men operate two or three mines over on the South side of town, and some of the men in their employ have been with them for many months, which is a good indication that they like the men to have as much as their business can afford to pay, barring a small profit for themselves.

A good many people of Curwensville have yet a fair recollection of the men who composed the old Maple Leaf baseball club of 1882 and 1883, and the brilliant games played by them while the Mountain League was in force. Between Clearfield and this team the feeling of conquest ran high and each game was fought to a finish.
